DIRECTORS MESSAGE

Dzinisi guja,

As the Tsuut'ina Health and Wellness Director, I am privileged to highlight the essential work of our incredible team within Health & Wellness Services. The Tsuut'ina Nation recognizes that true healing flourishes not in isolation but through the strength of relationships, partnerships, and our collective responsibility to care for one another throughout all stages of life.

Today, our programs and services unite with a shared and powerful purpose: to foster a healthier, stronger, and more resilient community, while acknowledging and addressing the effects of historical and intergenerational trauma. This trauma, deeply rooted in colonial policies, residential schools, forced assimilation, and the disruption of our families and Nations, continues to impact the emotional, mental, physical, and spiritual well-being of our people. Through collaboration, we strive to reclaim balance, dignity, and hope.

Our partnerships with internal and external programs, elders, and knowledge keepers are founded on respect, cultural safety, and shared accountability. Together, we are creating a supportive network that emphasizes prevention and wellness through culturally relevant education, language, land-based practices, and traditional teachings. Our efforts aim to enhance harm-reduction approaches that honour individuals without judgment and support their journey at every stage. We are also expanding access to mental health and addiction resources by providing trauma-informed, community-driven care.

These partnerships embody our conviction that genuine healing arises when programs collaborate closely, guided by the wisdom of Elders and Knowledge Keepers, and when community members feel both empowered and heard. Each collaboration signifies a dedication to addressing past wounds, fortifying the present, and investing in future generations.

I want to sincerely thank our incredible staff, partners, and all the citizens and members of our community. Your steadfast support and dedication are the heart of our journey. Together, we are making meaningful progress that is rooted in our cultural values, fueled by empathy, and united by our shared dream of a healthy and flourishing community. Your commitment truly inspires us, and we could not do it without you.

Lastly, I want to express my heartfelt gratitude to the Health & Wellness Committee. Together, we are committed to building a healthier, more resilient Nation. Thank you for your compassion and dedication to the well-being of our Nation.

Together, we honour our ancestors by building a future where wellness, connection, and cultural strength guide every step we take.

Siyisgaas.

Respectfully,
Lacy Runner MC, CCC

The Tsuut'ina Health & Wellness Services were granted a traditional name on June 18th, 2024, from respected Tsuut'ina Nation knowledge keepers, Bruce Starlight, Deanna Starlight, Bernice Starlight, Gerald Meguinis and Audrey Pipestem. The knowledge keepers shared the Tsuut'ina word, Diganádàts'idinìdalí, translating to "turning around or reverse." The meaning behind the word "Diganádàts'idinìdalí." supports the new direction of the Tsuut'ina Health & Wellness Services of operating in a proactive and preventative framework to address the historical and intergenerational trauma to help individuals from a client-centred approach to regain their identity through a hybrid model of western and cultural practices. The Tsuut'ina Health & Wellness Services, previously known as the Health Centre and Healthy Living Program, would like to share its new logo and name with the community.

Diganádàts'idinìdalí

The Wellness Team (previously called the Prevention Team) sought consultation from Tsuut'ina Elders and knowledge keepers Gerald Meguinis and Jeanette Starlight on the design and meaning of the new logo. Elder and knowledge keeper Gerald Meguinis shared that the logo should be simple, with an elderly woman walking with children to represent "leading our children into a brighter future." Jeanette Starlight, elder and knowledge keeper, also shared to incorporate the eagle, river and land to represent healing and spiritual aspects. The new logo of the two programs amalgamated under one vision represents the long-term goal of building a healthy community for future leaders.

Home Care

Home and Community Care services are provided to Nation members based on needs identified through a client assessment. The belief of care is to help clients keep their independence in their own home and allow them to be close to their loved ones as long as possible. Quality Home Care services are provided in a holistic culturally sensitive manner that looks at the client's physical, social, spiritual and emotional needs. The services will support and improve the care provided by the family and community but should not replace it.

Home and Community care services are provided mainly by registered nurses, licensed practical nurse, health care aides and home support workers at the community level. The referral to home Care can be done by any community member, family members, friends, doctors, neighbors or hospitals by calling the Home Care program at 403 251 7575.

Medical Transportation Criteria:

- One of the Medical Transportation Benefit Criteria is transportation will be provided to the nearest appropriate health professional or health facility.

PIIOHKSOPANSKII (SINGING LOUDLY FAR AWAY)

Angela Grier M. Ed Counselling Psychology (Piikani/ Blackfoot) is a Registered Provisional Psychologist. Grier has over 25 years of working and supporting First Nation individuals/ communities through direct and systemic approaches. Over the past two years, Angela was the first Indigenous staff member at the national office for the Canadian Counselling and Psychotherapy Association in Ottawa. This experience created the opportunity to bring national attention to Treaty Seven mental health issues, especially around the opioid and drug crisis during her time as a Federal Lobbyist. Her work within post-secondary institutions, Southern Alberta Institute of Technology (SAIT), the University of Lethbridge (U of L) and as a member of the guest faculty for 15 years at the Banff Centre, in addition has given Grier the opportunities to participate in meaningful research and education streams that directly impact Indigenous communities here in Treaty

Angela says, However nothing has been more important than my work directly with children and youth, including my own four children and granddaughter. My work with the Office of the Child and Youth Advocate (OCYA) included education and advocacy surrounding children's rights and bringing attention to the overrepresentation of First Nation and Indigenous children in care. My late mother Sandra Grier, was an avid advocate for First Nation children and communities, and she provided much influence for this journey. I have also enjoyed many years of service in my home community of Piikani, including working within suicide intervention and prevention, counselling, youth advocacy and as an elected member of the Piikani Nation Chief and Council. I am very excited to continue supporting First Nation mental health directly through this important and honorable work with the Tsuutina Nation.

Over the past 25 years, Laurelle has been working within First Nation Communities ranging from Treaty 7 to Treaty 8 territories providing counselling services. For the past nine years, she has been working with the TsuuT'ina Nation providing services to community members ages 16 and up. Laurelle specializes in Psychodynamic approaches of therapy to help clients understand the root causes of current mental health struggles such as Anxiety or Depression. She uses 2 different approaches to work with historical or recent trauma, those are EMDR (Eye Movement Desensitization and Reprocessing) and SE Somatic Experiencing which is body focussed. In addition, she has International Addiction Training which she can assist with Substance and Behavioural Addictions for both those struggling and supporting family members. Laurelle says, "I absolutely love my work supporting my clients on their healing journey. I am happy to provide a phone consultation to new clients to answer any questions and explain my services".

Christopher Schoepp is a Registered Psychologist with a more than 10 years' experience working with clients in Morley, Big Horn, Eden Valley and Tsuu T'ina. His experience living abroad and travelling extensively as well as his experience working with various First Nation communities in Alberta has led to an awareness and respect for cultural diversity that permeates his professional practice. Chris has worked in a variety of settings including behavioural treatment centers, community health centers, schools and private businesses. He managed community-based teams designed to build resilience in children, youth and families in three Alberta communities. Chris provides service to children, adolescents, couples and adults with concerns such as anxiety, depression, emotional regulation, aggression, transitions, trauma and family conflict. He has also worked extensively with children and families involved with the Child Protection system. Chris believes that the client/therapist relationship is the foundation of therapeutic success and that the approach taken must work for the client. Chris has experience in a number of therapeutic approaches including Cognitive Behaviour Therapy, Dialectical Behaviour Therapy, Solution Focused Therapy, Motivational Interviewing, and Narrative Therapy. In addition to providing counselling services, Chris is able to provide educational psychology services, including universal and targeted school programming, staff training, behaviour observations and psychoeducational assessments, as well as adult assessments.

PROGRAMS AND SERVICES

Women's Supportive Housing

The Women's Supportive Housing will offer in-home and residence for Tsuut'ina Nation women over 18 years of age with five beds experiencing displacement, including extended support through peer support, land-based teachings, culture/language programming, and life skills programming. The Women's Supportive Housing programming will focus on trauma, grief, social-emotional skills and the prevention of reuse of the individuals substance of choice (well-briery, matrix, and mending broken hearts). The program will work closely with other Tsuut'ina Nation and off-nation programs to support the journey of women experiencing displacement and let the women know that support is available.

Culture and Language

The cultural and language coordinator coordinates programming focusing on Tsuut'ina culture, language and land-based teachings under the consultation of Tsuut'ina elders, knowledge keepers and the Tsuut'ina Gunaha program. The Cultural and Language Coordinator works closely with all programs under Tsuut'ina Health and Wellness Services, but not limited to, to provide any relevant content to enhance program delivery with a Tsuut'ina focus.

Addictions

The addictions counsellor will work closely with the client services coordinator, wellness counsellor facilitator, mental health liaison, wellness and outreach teams, and any other Tsuut'ina Nation programs to support Tsuut'ina Nation citizens and community members in their recovery journey. The counselor will provide up-to-date information regarding substance misuse, lead support groups, and use appropriate, evidence-based intervention strategies and treatment approaches for clientele. The addictions counsellor will also facilitate evidence-based programs and information (presentations) to clientele, families, community members and Tsuut'ina Nation programs.

TEAM DESCRIPTIONS

Wellness Team

The Wellness team will work with other Tsuut'ina Health & Wellness programs, Tsuut'ina Nation programs, Calgary, and surrounding programs to promote education and awareness of mental health and overall well-being from preventative and proactive framework. When building positive working relationships with other Tsuut'ina Nation programs, the wellness team will focus on children and youth programming. However, it will not be limited to other collaborative programming for all Tsuut'ina Nation citizens and residents to promote awareness and education of mental health and healthy overall well-being.

Peer Support and Outreach

Overview

The purpose of this mandate is to define the role and practices of the Peer Support and Outreach Team. This team is dedicated to connecting with individuals and families in their environments, be it in their homes, on their land, or in community spaces. We offer direct, flexible, and culturally relevant support, with a focus on fostering trusting relationships with those who may be disconnected from services due to factors such as colonization, trauma, homelessness, mental health challenges, or substance use.

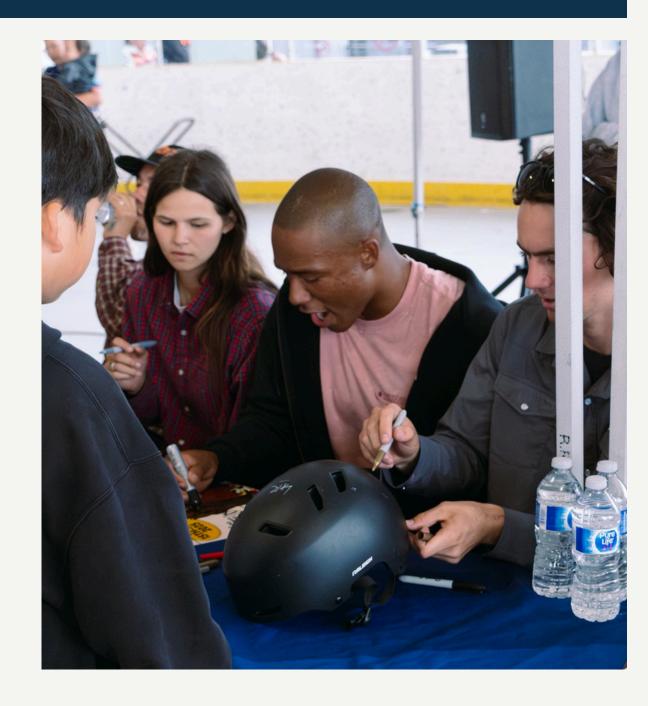

The team is committed to reducing barriers, addressing urgent needs, and promoting wellness through culturally safe methods that respect autonomy, dignity, and Indigenous ways of knowing and healing, guided by a harm reduction philosophy.

Youth Outreach

Overview

The Youth Outreach Workers (BSW, RSW) are passionately dedicated to empowering youth and young adults through engaging and supportive interactions rooted in trauma-informed practices. Our mission revolves around fostering safe, nurturing environments for individuals aged 12 to 30, where they can thrive and feel valued. We aim to equip young people with essential life skills, enhance their resilience, and offer practical assistance tailored to their unique needs.

In our commitment to holistic care, we collaborate closely with school counselors and various community partners, creating a network of support that ensures youth have access to comprehensive resources. This collaborative approach helps us address their diverse challenges while promoting their overall well-being. If you have any questions or would like to make a referral, please don't hesitate to contact us. We are here to help and support the youth in the Tsuut'ina community.

THE ROLL SHOWN

POLICIES AND PROCEDURES

Scope and Purpose

- The manual outlines policies for all Health and Wellness Services (TTNHWS), applying to employees, participants, clients, assets, and facilities.
- It supports the Nation's Treaty right to health, guiding program evolution to meet community needs.

Key Principles

- Respect for Dignity: Services are delivered with respect for individual uniqueness, privacy, and cultural customs.
- Community Partnerships: TTNHWS maintains relationships with local agencies, participates in community events, and promotes collaboration.
- Nation Involvement: The Nation is engaged through presenters, volunteers, and participation in cultural and educational activities.

Persons Served

- Services target all Tsuut'ina Nation citizens and residents, especially those with substance misuse, abuse history, or socio-economic challenges.
- Inclusion: No discrimination based on disability, orientation, beliefs, or background.
 Traditional and alternative healing practices are respected.

Confidentiality and Consent

- Strict confidentiality for participant/client information, with release only by signed consent or legal requirement.
- Informed consent is required for all services, except in emergencies.

Safety and Emergency Management

- Monthly safety meetings; emergency procedures for fire, flood, and other crises.
- Emergency numbers are posted throughout facilities; 911 is the primary contact for urgent situations.

Quality Improvement

- Continuous evaluation and improvement of services through annual reviews, surveys, and performance evaluations.
- Data collection supports outcome monitoring and reporting to funders.

Quality Improvement

- Employees and volunteers adhere to a strict code of ethics, maintaining professional boundaries and respect.
- Participant and Client Bill of Rights: Ensures dignity, safety, informed consent, and freedom from discrimination.

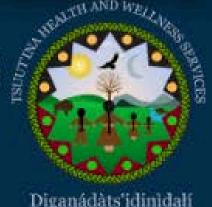

Significance:

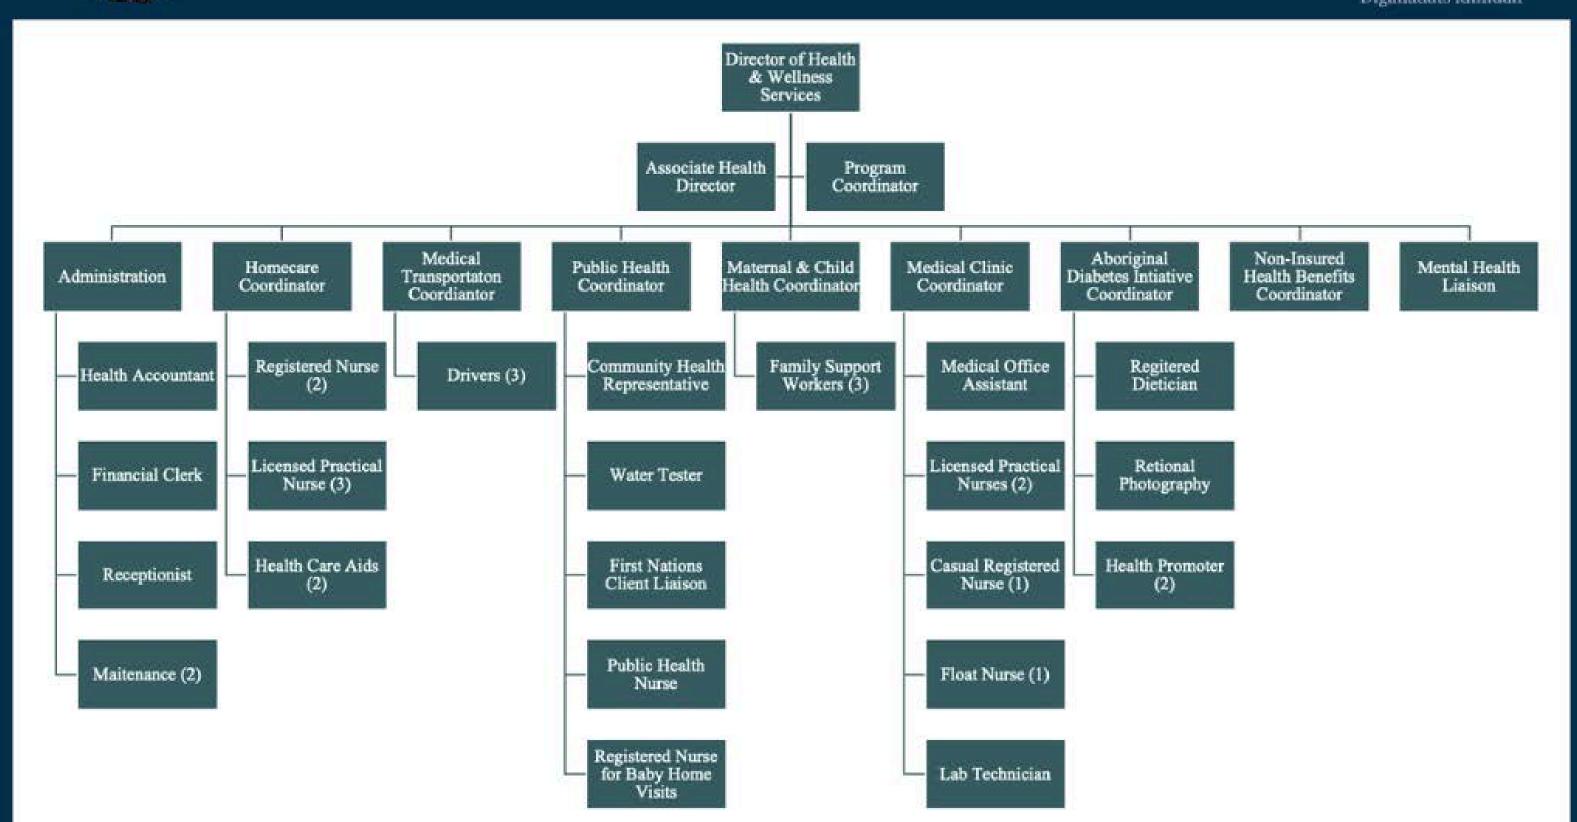

This policy manual is foundational for delivering culturally respectful, safe, and effective health and wellness services to the Tsuut'ina Nation. It emphasizes holistic care, confidentiality, and the protection of participant and client rights.

PREVENTION

HARM REDUCTION

STABILIZATION

INTERVENTION

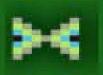

AFTERCARE

100

OVERVIEW

In the continuum of care model, prevention is a key part of educating people about trauma.

This approach helps address the effects of historical and intergenerational trauma on individuals and communities. By using trauma-informed practices, we create a supportive environment for healing and help prevent children from getting involved in high-risk lifestyles.

We do this by providing strong support and resources that encourage healthy growth and resilience in children. Educational programs that focus on emotional well-being, life skills, and coping strategies are important for empowering young people. When we give them the knowledge and tools they need, we can help them make positive life choices and break the cycle of trauma. This ultimately leads to safer and healthier communities.

OVERVIEW

From an Indigenous approach, harm reduction is deeply rooted in cultural values, community care, and holistic well-being. Indigenous communities have long recognized the interconnectedness of people, the environment, and the spiritual realm.

This perspective shapes how harm reduction is approached in Indigenous contexts, offering unique insights into health, addiction, and social issues.

OVERVIEW

Stabilization is a critical first step in supporting individuals living with addiction, particularly in preventing relapse and fostering connection.

It involves creating a safe, structured environment where individuals can address immediate physical, emotional, and psychological needs, which lays the foundation for long-term recovery.

OVERVIEW

An effective intervention for Aftercare support plays a vital individuals recovering from role for individuals recovering addiction or trauma combines both Western practices and holistic approaches, often referred to as a "two-eyed lens" approach.

This method recognizes the strengths and contributions of both paradigms, allowing for a comprehensive and culturally sensitive strategy for healing.

OVERVIEW

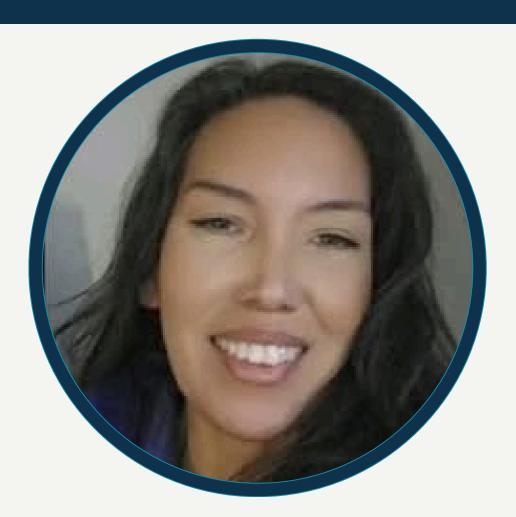

Aftercare support plays a vital role for individuals recovering from addiction or healing from past trauma. It offers ongoing guidance, resources, and structure essential for long-term recovery and healing. By using a two-eyed lensintegrating both Western approaches and holistic, culturally rooted practices this support enhances the effectiveness of care.

It addresses both the mind and spirit, leading to a more profound and comprehensive healing process.

NEW SPECIALISTS

NANCY KINYEWAKAN MENTAL HEALTH THERAPIST

B.A. First Nations & Aboriginal Counselling | M.Ed. Counselling Aboriginal Communities | Registered Clinical Counsellor (RCC)

Hello, my name is Nancy Kinyewakan. I am from Sioux Valley First Nation on my mother's side and Peguis First Nation on my father's side. I recently moved to Calgary and am grateful to be living and working on the territories of the Blackfoot Confederacy (Siksika, Kainai, Piikani), the Tsuut'ina Nation, and the Îyâxe Nakoda Nations, as well as the Métis Nation of Alberta, Region 3.

Having worked for over 20 years counselling Indigenous people and running my private practice, I find my passion in supporting Indigenous people to resist violence in all forms, especially within colonial systems. My deepest gratitude centers on being a witness through people's journeys of transformation.

My practice is grounded in Indigenous ways of knowing, with respect for culture, ceremony, and community and bring training in several trauma therapies, working from a perspective that supports safety and resilience.

I have been honoured to provide mental health support in partnership with organizations such as the WSÁNEC School Board, the First Nations Health Authority, the Support Network for Indigenous Women and Women of Colour, the BC Human Rights Commission, and the Representative for Children and Youth. I am also a longtime community volunteer with the Stolen Sisters Memorial March, supporting awareness and healing for Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women, Girls, and Two-Spirit people.

COLLABORATIONS

Prevention Dollars Overview

With funding provided by Indigenous Services Canada for prevention, Tsuut'ina Health & Wellness Services is committed to providing support through a two-eyed lens approach. This approach incorporates Tsuut'ina culture, language, and land-based activities. The funding enables us to implement a range of services and activities designed to enhance safety and well-being within the Tsuut'ina Nation. The funding supports three levels: primary, secondary, and tertiary. By emphasizing culturally relevant strategies, Tsuut'ina Health & Wellness Services is committed to creating a nurturing environment that empowers families and strengthens the Nation as a whole.

The funding has created a significant opportunity for Health & Wellness to enhance capacity and forge partnerships with other programs to deliver primary preventative initiatives. There is also a strong emphasis on supporting children and youth to develop a solid foundation of emotional, social, and cognitive skills. These practices will contribute to the growth of resilient and healthy children and youth, ultimately helping them become resilient adults.

The services offered to address various challenges include, but are not limited to, psychiatric and psychological services, counselling support for children, youth and adults coping with traumatic events, food security assistance, psychoeducational assessments for children under 18 years old, respite support, and other family-related services as requested. Additionally, residential support is available through the Transformations program, located near Prince George, British Columbia.

The funding has played a pivotal role in strengthening collaboration and ongoing support across various Nation departments. Over the years, Health and Wellness Services has partnered with the Tsuut'ina Youth Program, Recreation Department, 7 Chiefs Hockey Program, Agriplex Youth Riding Program, Disabilities Services, Early Intervention Program (EIP), Guja Food Program, Food Bank, and Tsuut'ina Education to deliver diverse programming for youth and families throughout the community.

Through partnerships with the Recreation Department, Youth Program, Disabilities Services, and EIP, we have hosted a range of family engagement nights, youth information sessions, recreational initiatives, and non-traditional sports opportunities such as skateboarding. These inclusive programs provide healthy and creative outlets for youth who may not find connection with conventional sports. To further inspire participants, professional and Olympic-level skateboarders, recognized nationally and internationally, have been invited to mentor youth, fostering confidence, perseverance, and community connection through sport.

Financial assistance has also been provided to parents, guardians, and youth participating in the Alberta Indigenous Games, helping to ease financial pressures. Additional funding supports recreational activities for children and youth under the age of 18, promoting their social and physical development within established limits. The funding has further supported Youth Fit Foundation memberships, which focus on mindfulness, nutrition, and exercise. Our collaboration with the 7 Chiefs Hockey Program has also provided financial support for youth hockey camps, encouraging skill development, teamwork, and active, healthy living.

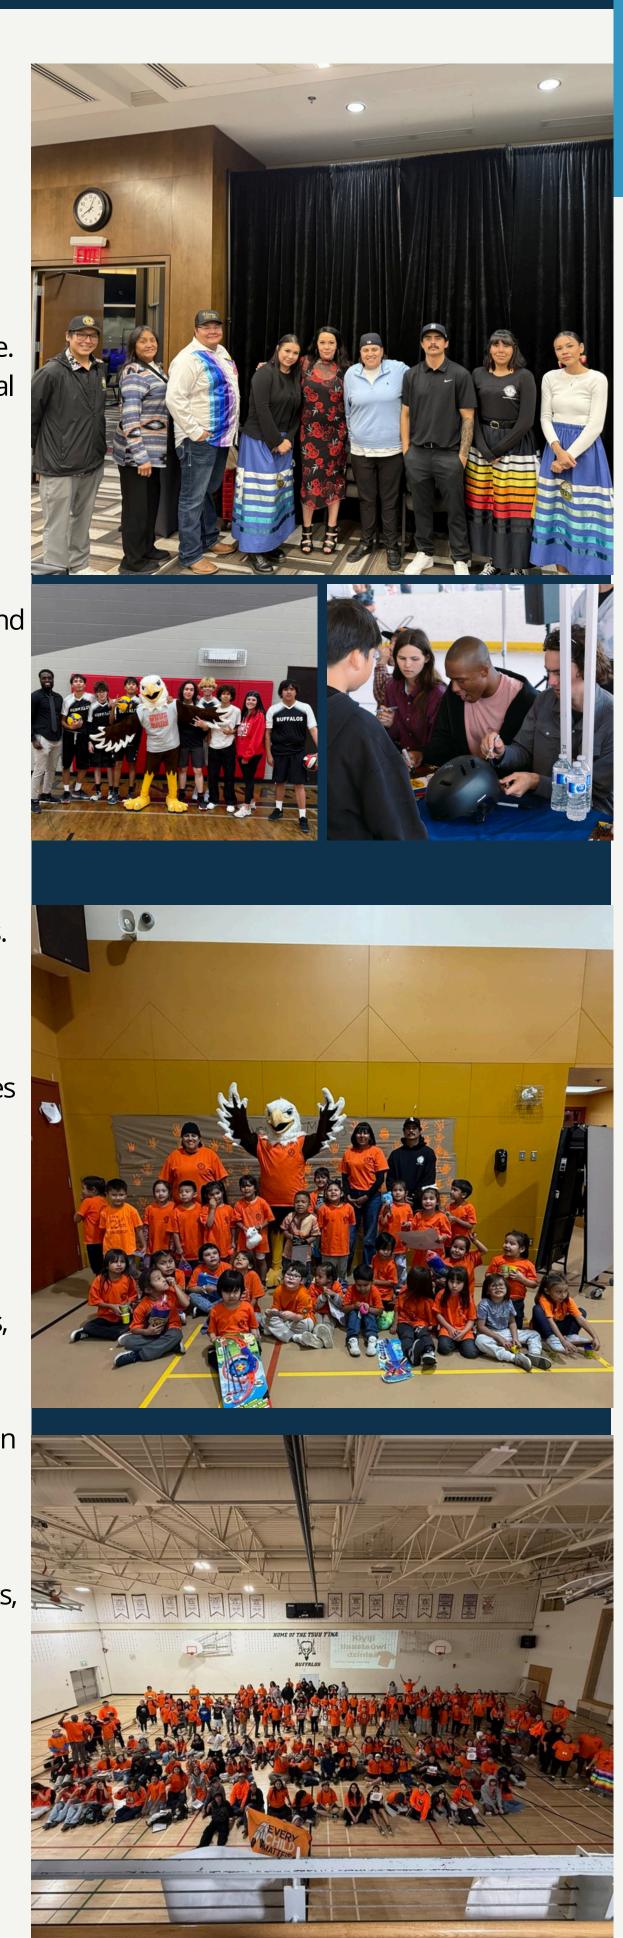

In partnership with the Agriplex Youth Riding Program, we have co-hosted community High Point events that engaged more than 100 community members per event. We also contributed essential supplies, including boots and equipment, and provided on-site support during weekly program nights, ensuring participants had access to both nourishment and guidance.

The funding has continued to sustain attendance incentive programs at Chilla Elementary and Big Belly Middle School. A strong partnership has also been established with Tsuut'ina Education, encompassing all three Nation schools. This collaboration supports attendance initiatives and ongoing student engagement through classroom programming and mentorship opportunities.

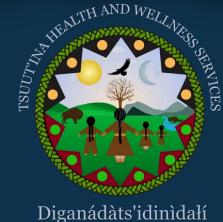

The Wellness and Youth Outreach Teams have facilitated Edwin reading and colouring book sessions that focus on basic emotions, grief, and loss, helping younger students build emotional awareness and coping skills. At Many Horses High School, the teams offer educational presentations and mentorship opportunities that foster positive decision-making, leadership, and personal growth.

Additionally, funding has been allocated to the Guja Food Program's food security initiatives, which include Christmas Family Hampers, grocery gift cards, and workshops focused on trauma, grief, and family support. We have also partnered with the Tsuut'ina Food Bank to provide $200,000 in direct funding, strengthening food security efforts and ensuring that families across the Nation have consistent access to nutritious food and essential resources throughout the year.

Collaboration and partnerships continue to thrive across multiple departments, focusing on prevention and initiatives that empower children, youth, and families through a two-eyed seeing approach. This holistic framework acknowledges the significance of addressing intergenerational trauma while emphasizing the importance of culture, language, and land-based activities as vital components of recovery, resilience, and family preservation.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Announcement for the Newsletter from Community Health:

Flu and COVID-19 shots (No Charge) are available at the Health Centre.

Please call Karen Dodginghorse at the Health Centre to book your appointment.

Tsuut'ina Pharmacy offers the Flu vaccine, but does not have the COVID-19 vaccine.

Measles continues to circulate in Alberta. Two doses of the measles vaccine provide full protection against this serious and highly contagious disease.

Call the Health Centre to check if you and your family are up to date with your vaccinations.

Maternal Child Health Program:

Fall Prenatal Classes run from October 7 – November 25th from 1:00-3:00 at the Health Centre consisting of 7 sessions. The Early Years Program assisted the ADI team with their kids in the kitchen Halloween Event.

The Early Years team organized an Early Years Family Pumpkin Painting event October 29th with the Early Years families.

The Early Years Team is planning rattle making classes with Richard LeBlanc December 1st and 5th from 11:00-2:00. Lunch will be served.

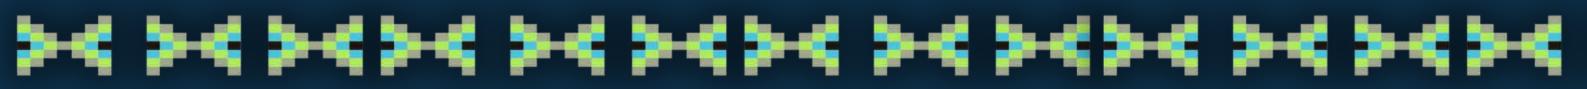

The Early Years Team will also be doing an Elf on the Shelf event and contest for the Early Years families for the month of December. - details yet to be confirmed.

The Early Years Toolbox Cards and curriculum is fully developed as well as the Impact database to provide structure and direction for the Early Years Family visitors to provide parenting supports to the families in the community. The Early Years course is a 45-hour course developed in Tsuut'ina language and culture that is being developed in hopes of providing an ECE level one course to all members of the community. This has a tentative completion date of March 2026. Please see attached local artwork used for both the toolbox cards as well as for the Early Years course.

MENTAL HEALTH AND YOU

CHECK YOURSELF

Effective communication begins first with YOU! Before we can pass on any message to another person, its important to understand how our own self, mood, feelings, thoughts, assumptions might alter or taint the message we are trying to share. If we are having a bad day - it's likely that some of those feelings might carry across in the way we think, speak and hold ourself. A self check-in can be done

FEELINGS+ EMOTIONS

quickly and simply by asking yourself a few questions.

How am I feeling today?

Am I content, happy, sad, angry, annoyed or frustrated?

Am I able to control how I'm feeling in order to engage and relate to the person in front of me?

Am I in a safe emotional state to have this conversation?

Do I feel defensive or backed into a

ANXIETY +

On a scale of 1-10 how anxious do I feel right now? Is my stomach in knots or am I calm?

Do I need to ground myself before having this interaction? How can I do that?

Will this conversation trigger me or create stress? How can I manage myself if I do feel uncomfortable or triggered during this conversation?

Do I need to have an escape plan or planned time out if it becomes overwhelming?

Is this the best time to have this conversation?

What am I thinking right now?

Are my thoughts racing or are they calm?

YOUR BRAIN , XM

Am I in a state of reaction or am I able to think to respond?

Are my thoughts rational or am I feeling led by my emotions?

Do I have any expectation of what I want to happen? Will these change my ability to be open minded?

> What can I do to clear my thoughts and come to this engagement with an open mind?

JUDGEMENTS + ASSUMTIONS

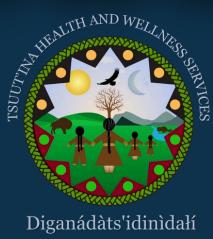

Have I experienced a similar conversation or situation before?

Do I have an open mind or am I placing judgements on this situation?

What assumptions am I making about what has gone on or will go on?

> How can I clear my mind and be open to THIS situation?

MENTAL HEALTH AND YOU

REDUCING ANGER

THOUGHTS

to correct negative thinking Challenge your thoughts ie. Ask yourself "Is that true?" "Do I want to think that way."

SELF TALK

-to correct negative head talk "I can get through this" "This is hard but im okay" "Im doing this for my sisters "Im a good kid and trying"

CONTROLLED BREATHING

SLOW DEEP breathing 5 seconds in, 5-10 seconds out This calms your Nervous System

PHYSICAL EXHERTION

- to help release built up tension and Angry energy

- · Punching bag
- · Running às fast às you can
- . Throwing a ball as hard as you can (Into ground or at brick wall)
- · Jumping up and down

SELF OBSERVATION

Notice the signs of oncoming anger and plan strategies to help reduce them ie. tension, sweating, heart rate, wanting to punch something, shallow breathing, blame, negative thoughts

LOWERING BODY TEMPERATURE

Cooling down helps you relax

- · use a cold face washer
- · drink ice water
- · Have a cold shower

COMMUNICATION

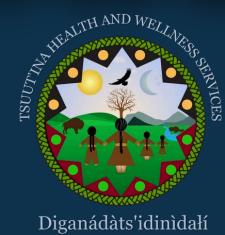

Express what has led to Anger and what you need for support ie "Im feeling Anxious and needed to get out of the House to distract

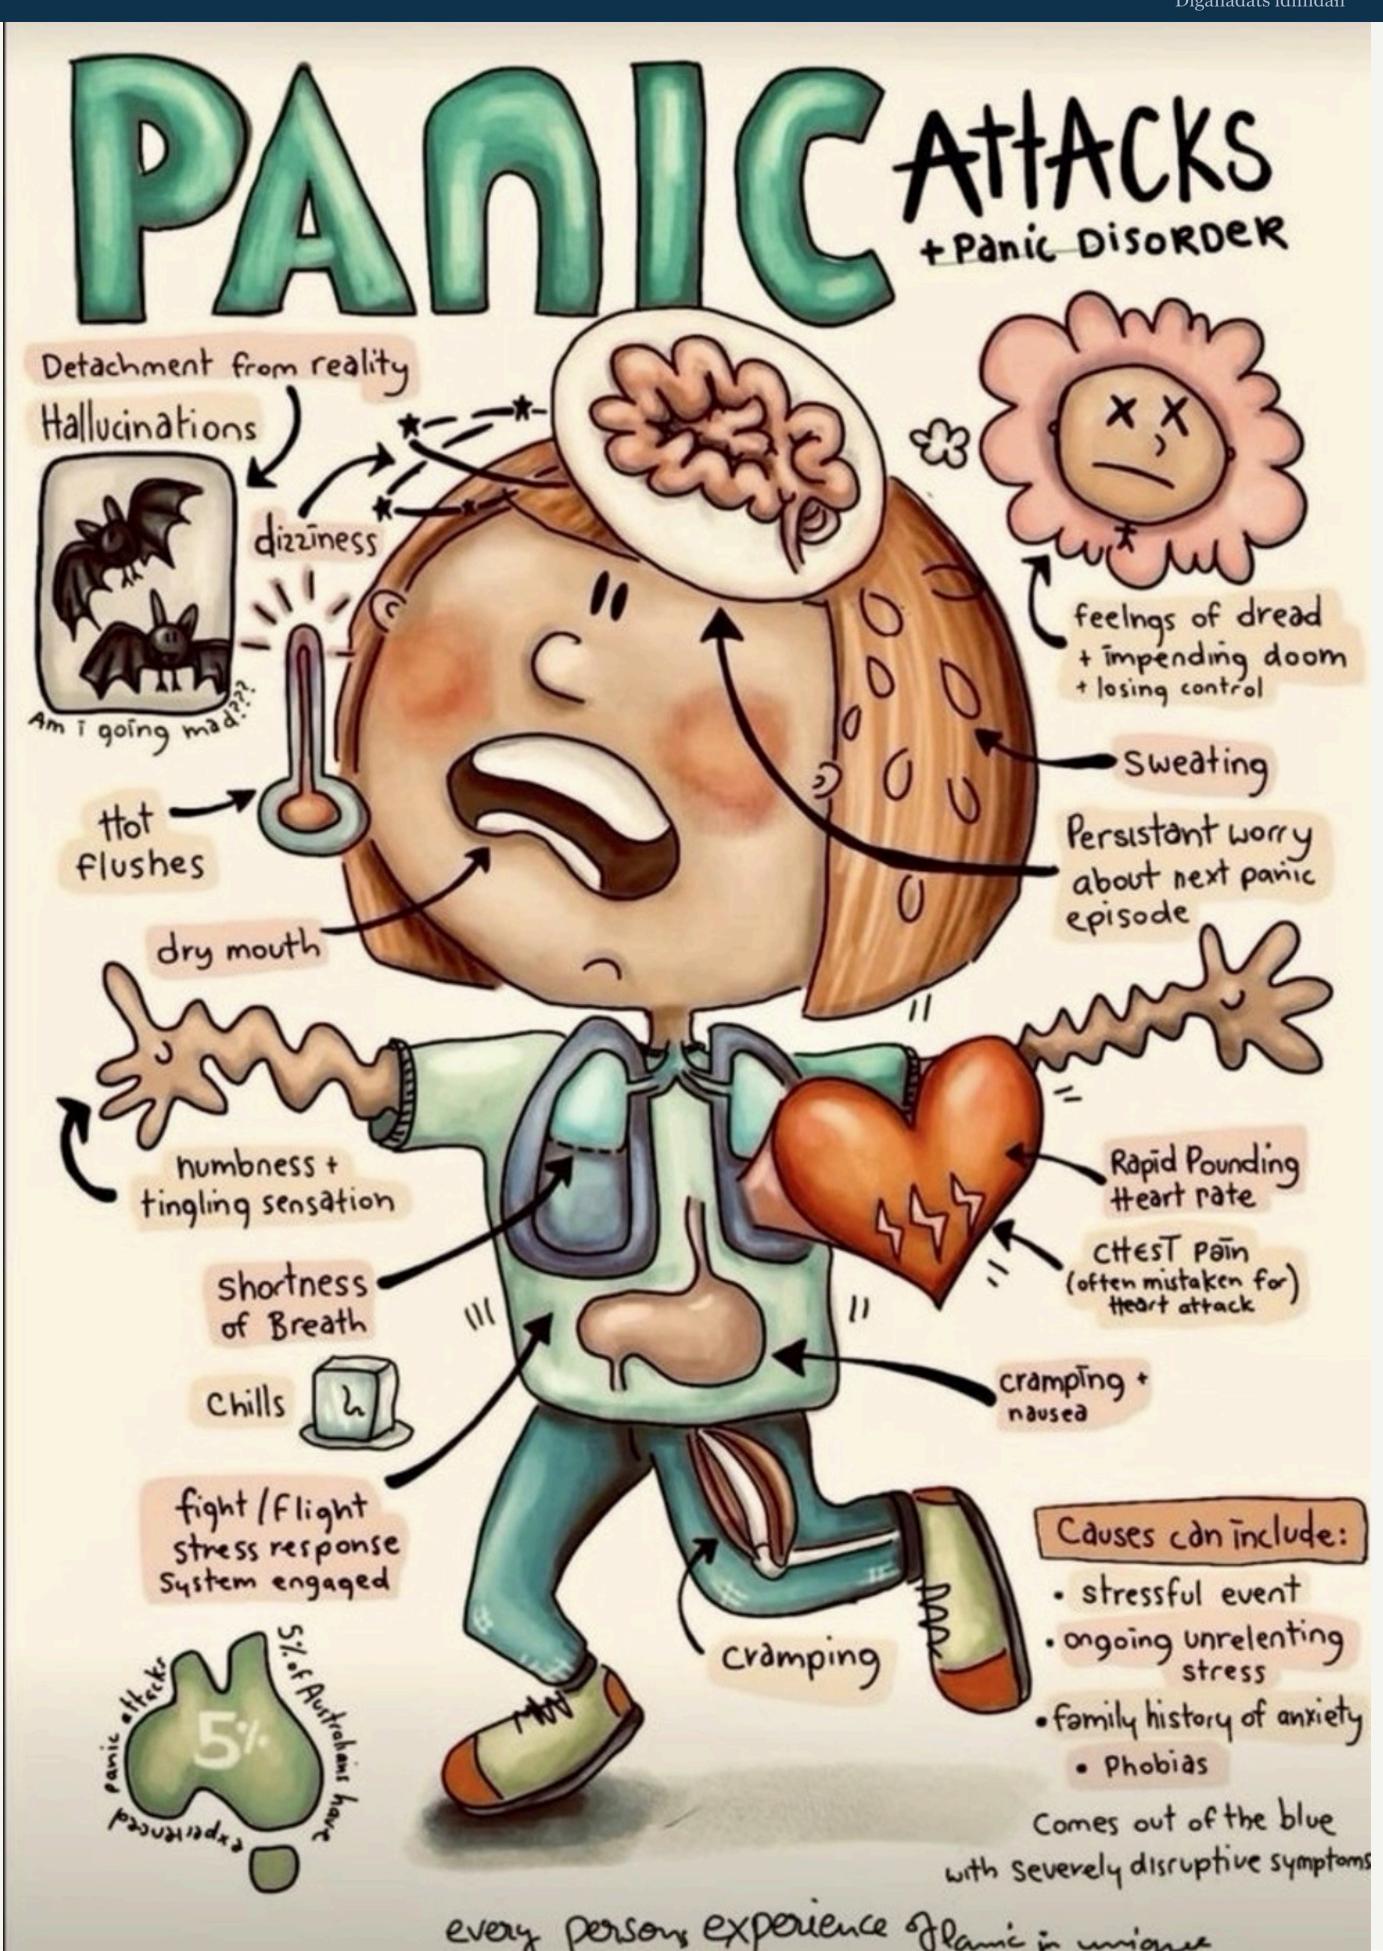

UNDERLYING EMOTIONS

Try and connect to the emotion Under the Anger

- · Hurt
- · fear
- · frustration
- · lonliness
- · feeling let down . worry
- · Betrayal · Anxiety
- · feeling unsafe · feeling lied to and seek support to help resolve it
